Beyond Borders Band CD Release Tour 2018/19 "It Just Happens"

Crossing borders requires courage, creativity and openness for a new form of social and musical composition. The four members of the Beyond Borders Band are united in the dream to overcome those borders. They break up cultural boundaries, surpass geographical barriers and social and political stereotypes in order to connect the arabic and the western world. These characteristics lead to their self-composed, original music. Sensually ambitious and fully intoxicating, this unique sound makes the young group stick out among the contemporary musical collectives combining Orient and Occident.

From October until November 2018 and in February 2019 the Beyond Borders Band is taking It Just Happens on the road for concerts in Germany, Switzerland and Tunisia.

„With all the soloists of Beyond Borders Band, it is simply flying high. Composition-wise, there is a consistency, a coherence, originality and innovation.“

La Presse Tunis (2014), Khaled Tebourbi

„A real musical silversmith work and, essentially, no "plating" of oriental and western phrasing. Nothing overdone or juxtaposed but different sounds meeting and even merging into one another, precisely as they are intended to be.“

„With a combination of oud, double bass, percussion and saxophone the four musicians create an intricate web of european jazz beats and arabic music tradition which overcomes all musical styles.“

Süddeutsche Zeitung (18th August 2017) , Barbara Hordych

„This music is very mature. It takes a lot of talent and skills to create and play arrangements such as these. Maybe it takes a certain amount of life experience to understand and feel the message. For us this is a huge discovery. What we've seen today is avantgarde and an expression of freedom.“

Mehdi Lariani (29th March 2015), Visitor of a concert in Tunis

Band Biography

After their self-published debut, Un Coup De Destin (2013), the border-crossing German-Tunisian collective took an extensive break until the present release, It Just Happens (2018 HOUT records). In today's fast-moving times this might seem odd, but it goes in line with the band's principle: their collaboration is a process of creation that doesn't end with the first release tour. Over a considerable amount of time they need to surpass vast distances and cultural differences to further grow together as a group. It is all about accepting the other side for what it is and defining one's own identity from a new perspective.

The Beyond Borders Band takes its name literally. The group's openness and readiness to overcome borders characterises their uncommon exchange and plays an important role in forming each individual's musical personality.

After almost seven years of developing a unique style in numerous concerts, and after many travel hours, the band reached a strong personal and musical relationship. This builds up trust in every situation, personally and musically. This is the main reason why we can expect them to take the music through the roof on stage. There are no tactics, no plan, but an interplay of childlike excitement and unwavering determination. Here and now. It Just Happens. The current release offers a broad musical spectrum of driving Jazz solos, Rock backbeats and arabesque melodies.

From October until November 2018 and in February 2019 the Beyond Borders Band is taking It Just Happens on the road for concerts in Germany, Switzerland and Tunisia. The tour launches with a debut appearance at renowned Enjoy Jazz Festival in Mannheim, Germany on 30th October. They are also using the festival's international recognition to present another premiere: In collaboration with international film artists the band has created a film that follows the concept of the music. With the unique history of Beyond Borders Band as an example, the picture discusses questions about cultural identity, prejudice and open intercultural exchange.

Fadhel Boubaker – Oud

Fadhel started to play oud with his teacher Slaheddin J'aïbi. From early on he was fascinated by the number of possibilities this instrument offers. He mastered the repertoire of Tunisian Malûf. After discovering Western music he started improving his own musical language, bringing to his instrument western music aesthetic elements and building a stronger acknowledgement of harmony, jazz improvisation and composition. At the University of Music in Tunis he wrote his final thesis on 'The intercultural exchange between jazz and maqam music'. In 2003 he began composing for international projects and thereby crossing the borders between Jazz and Arabic music. Fadhel is currently lecturing on 'Instant Composing' and 'Jazz-Fusion' at the High Institute for Music in Tunis.

Niko Seibold – Saxophone

After spending one year as a Composition Major at renowned Manhattan School of Music in New York, German Saxophonist and Composer/Arranger Niko Seibold now works in and out of Switzerland, living in Basel on the border to France and Germany. The international and creative scene there led to the creation of several ensemble like his main quartet SEiBOLZiNG, the harp & sax duo Harpkissax with Geneva based Harpist Esther Sévêrac, the 11-piece chamber jazz group Elfton Ensemble and the NY based Niko Seibold Big Band. As a performer he has worked with Guillermo Klein, Jorge Rossy and Mark Turner among others. Furthermore he has gained more attention as an arranger for big band and orchestra which brought him commissions from Grammy-nominated percussionist Bobby Sanabria and the internationally acclaimed Metropole Orkest with American Singer Kandace Springs. Apart from his creative output he also passes on his knowledge to those interested in his knowledge. He co-founded the Toskana Intensiv Jazz Workshop where he teaches instrumental groups, improvisation and music theory. Niko holds a bachelor's degree from the conservatory of Mannheim and a master's degree from Jazzcampus Basel, Switzerland, both in musical performance. Niko Seibold believes in the importance of balance between intellect and emotion, head and body, inspiration and aspiration in music. His compositional work reflects and stays true to this philosophy.

Jonathan Sell – Double Bass

Jonathan Sell plays in a wide range of styles, from western classical music to progressive rock, from jazz to oriental maqam. In July 2017 he finished his master studies of jazz-double-bass with Prof. Thomas Stabenow in Mannheim with distinction. His final concert was performed with a band project that connected arabic music, indian music, Jazz and Rock . A central characteristic of his play is the interpretation of music as the universal language that overcomes cultural, national and stylistic borders. He is a member of the Orientalische Musikakademie Mannheim, where he commits himself to cultural exchange through music. Beside Beyond Borders Band the following groups are his most important means of expression: The Swindlers (Prog Rock & Jazz), NeckarGanga (Indian Jazz), Tuyala (Spoken Word & Jazz), and Fityan (Oriental Jazz Rock).

Dominik Fürstberger – Drumset

Dominik Fürstberger is a drummer, composer and producer. Working intensely on a hybrid instrument of acoustic drums and live-electronics with the goal of giving acoustic sounds a totally new sonic dimension has been shaping the focus of his artistic activity over the last years. This idea is being realized in various groups including the german tunisian band Haz'art Trio, the electronic pop duo FLEEB, the techno orchestra VKKO and the Beyond Borders Band. The border-crossing work has also become important during Dominik Fürstberger's theatre works. At Staatstheater Mainz he was on stage as drummer and sounddesigner during the productions Die Sirenen des Titan (2015) and Das Käthchen von Heilbronn (2016/2017) and was composing and producing the music for Orestes (2017).
